SUGGESTIONS TO TEACHERS.

L EARNING to Spell consists largely in forming correct habits—habits of thinking, in order, of the names or forms of the letters composing words, and habits of moving the pen so as to make these letters when their names or forms are thought of. In oral spelling the pupil recalls and speaks the names of the letters; this may or may not be accompanied by a recall of the visible forms of the letters. In written spelling the guide to the process of making the letters is, primarily, the conception of the forms of the letters; this may or may not be accompanied by the ideas of the names of the letters.

Some pupils are helped more in spelling by the association of sound; others more by the association of form; all, no doubt, are helped more or less by both. Hence both kinds of spelling should be practiced in school.

[Extract from preface of "The Normal Course in Spelling," by LARKIN DUNTON, LL.D., Head Master Boston Normal School, and C. GOODWIN CLARK, late Master of Gaston School, Boston.]

In business life and in social life spelling is done with the pen. School work should train pupils by methods that will most surely prepare them for the duties they must take up after such training is ended, and hence the necessity for large provision for written spelling. The Writing Speller is especially adapted to this end, and offers several advantages:

1. It trains in the forms of words.
2. It enables the teacher to direct the work of the entire class at one time.
3. It affords every pupil an equal opportunity.
4. It furnishes practice in writing at the same time it gives a lesson in spelling.

The Normal Writing Speller is designed to meet the demand for a Writing Speller that is compact, convenient, and that will retain in a simple form, a record of the pupil's work, that the results can be noted and progress determined. It consists of thirty-six pages, each page divided into two columns, each column ruled so as to give space for writing twenty words, and at the bottom extra lines for rewriting words incorrectly spelled in the lesson. It also furnishes an appropriate number of pages especially adapted to dictation work.

At the top of each page are shown engraved copies of the script letters, both large and small, so that the pupil has before him the proper forms to follow.

It is a good plan in correcting a pupil's work, to employ the following signs, which are those regularly employed by printers in correcting proof.

X	means	word misspelled.
^	"	something omitted.
d	"	take out.
tr.	"	transpose.
≡	"	use capital letter.
l. c.	"	use small letter.

See that the pupil takes the correct position in writing, holds the pen properly, and above all, exact neat and careful work. Have the pupil learn and follow the rules for spelling, as given on the third page of this cover.

RULES.

The following excellent rules for spelling are taken from the NORMAL COURSE IN SPELLING, by Larkin Dunton, LL.D., Head Master Boston Normal School, and C. Goodwin Clark, late Master Gaston School, Boston :

Rule I.—The plural of nouns is generally formed by adding s to the singular.

Rule II.—Nouns ending in ch soft, s, sh, x, or z, add es for the plural.

Rule III.—Nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant, in forming the plural, change y to i and add es.

Rule IV.—The possessive singular of nouns is generally formed by adding an apostrophe and s to the nominative.

Rule V.—When the nominative plural ends in s, the possessive is formed by an apostrophe only.

Rule VI.—When the plural does not end in s, the possessive is formed by adding an apostrophe and s.

Rule VII.—Nouns ending in y preceded by a vowel, in forming the plural, add s.

Rule VIII.—Words ending in silent e drop the e before a suffix beginning with a vowel.

Rule IX.—Words ending in ce and ge retain the e before able and ous.

Rule X.—Words ending in silent e retain the e before a suffix beginning with a consonant.

Rule XI.—Words ending in y preceded by a consonant change y to i in derivatives.

Rule XII.—Final y is not changed before suffixes beginning with i.

Rule XIII.—Final y preceded by a vowel is not changed in derivatives.

Rule XIV.—Monosyllables ending with a single consonant preceded by a single vowel double the final consonant before a suffix beginning with a vowel.

Rule XV.—The final consonant of a monosyllable is not doubled before a vowel, if it is preceded by a consonant or by two vowels.

Rule XVI.—In words of more than one syllable, a final consonant preceded by a single vowel is doubled before a suffix beginning with a vowel, if the last syllable is accented.

Rule XVII.—When the first letter of word and the last letter of the prefix are the same, both letters are retained.

Rule XVIII.—When the last letter of a word and the first letter of a suffix are the same, both letters are retained.
